

Hi, this is _____ with Federal Employee Benefits USA. Do you recall what happened at your new employee orientation? In what seemed like 10 minutes, the moderator quickly glossed over the very basic details of all of your federal benefits, then told you to get to work and they would see you many years from then.

Your employees probably had this experience, too. On the walls of your workplace, there are memorandums put out about service talks, safety meetings, and zero-tolerance policies.

Nowhere on the walls is there anything that says, “Do you know how your federal employee benefits will change as you progress through your career?” Nothing about helping you understand your benefits to begin with, either.

We are the leader in providing benefits education, guidance, and financial peace of mind for all federal employees. I am here to assist you with providing benefits education, as stated by OPM in its Benefits Letter mandating workplace education, and as mandated by Title 5 of the U.S. Code.

You are entitled to your own federal benefits analysis showing where you are at today, and how tomorrow will look for you. This is THE one big thing that they forgot to mention to you in orientation.

I would like to change that with a complimentary service talk for you and your employees.
